COUNCIL DISCUSSES KIND OF LAMP POSTS

VAN BIBBER WANTS CITY SUPERVISION IN THIS IMPORTANT MATTER

HOSE CART FOR DEPOT AVENUE

F. D. Palmer Wants Something Done Towards Construction Of Sewer on Galena and Tenth

In all probability the city council will hereafter prescribe what kind of lamp posts are erected by merchants of the city who desire to install boulevard lights in front of their places of business. The question was brought up at last night's meeting of the commissioners by Commissioner VanBibber, and the councilmen agreed that all posts be uniform. No definite action was taken last evening but a measure covering the question will undoubtedly be prepared and passed.

The council also received a petition from 20 Dementtown business asking that a hose cart, fully equipped be installed in the city building on Depot avenue. The petition was referred to Commisioner M. J. Gannon; who stated he would look into the question and see just what the Dementtown people desired, as there is at present a cart, fully equipped with hose in the Dementtown station

F. D. Palmer was present at the council meeting and asked the commissioners to do something toward the construction of the sewer on Galena avenue and Tenth street, which has been passed by the board and council and which has been approved by the court.

Mr. Palmer was informed that the board had advertised for bids on this improvement a number of times but in every case the proposals were above the estimated cost, and that therefore the contract could not be let. It may develope, as a result of the conference with Mr. Palmer last evening that the property owners the street will take some steps to make up the difference in price.

"We'll have a song on the phonograph," said Miss Dewitt to her guests.

She cranked up the machine and then came these words, in the voice of the young woman's father:

"Ladies and gentlemen, I beg to announce the engagement of my daughter, Miss Edith Lee Dewitt, to Vallery H. Tarbell of 1283 Commonwealth avenue, Boston. Now get busy, for the next thing on the program is the congratulations."

The truck, which cost the city of Sterling $5,500, made a run yesterday of seventeen blocks in two minutes and fifty seconds. This time was taken from the time the alarm was turned in, and included the time it took the firemen to board the wagon, crank it, and get to the alarm box.

After the demonstration for time the machine was driven over fifteen miles of brick pavement in the city. was forced through newly plowed ground, stubble and dirt and at no time did it run slower than thirty miles an hour and maintained an average speed of fifty-five miles

SNAKE ON RAIL HALTS TRAIN

Joker Is Arrested For Trespassing as Obstacle Looks Like Iron Bar.

Norristown, Pa.—Because he took liberties with a snake, Leonard Mink of Philadelphia, a resorter at Gratersford, was fined heavily by Justice E. M. Harry.

Mink, while fishing, saw a large watersnake, and killed it. As its tail was still wriggling he threw the reptile on the tracks of the Perkiomen railroad in front of an approaching passenger train.

The engineer, seeing the act and noting that the man ran up the bank, thought he was a train-wrecker, and mistook the snake for a bar of iron. The engineer applied the emergency brakes, which brought the passengers to their feet and the train to a sudden stop. Then the snake was found.

Special Policeman O'Donnell of the Reading Railway company happened to be on the scene and took Mink into custody for trespassing.

COL. MEESE TELLS OF RIVER PLANS

FATHER OF MOVEMENT HAS BACKING TO MAKE ROCK RIVER NAVIGABLE

WILL URGE CONGRESS TO ACT

Shippers See Great Advantage In Route by Water To Chicago Not a Hard Proposition

It was the concensus of opinion of the representative men in the progressive cities along Rock river valley, that when the Rock river improvement association, elected Hon. W. A. Meese of Rock Island President of the association, that the coming year would witness great advancement in the proposition to improve Rock river and make it navigable from Sterling to Janesville.

Father of Movement

Mr. Meese is the father of the movement to make Rock river a navigable stream, and has th backing of the leading citizen of the Rock River Valley in this movement At the meeting of the leading shippers of the Rock River Valley at Rockford on Saturday, Mr. Meese gave a splendid address to the meeting.

Outlines Policy

In outlining the plan, Mr. Meese told of the advantages to shippers farmers and to citizens of every city touched by the improved river. He told of the surbey, which had just been completed. I do not know what they will recommend, but I have so much faith in the proposition that I believe it advisable to immediately start work for the securing of improments to Rock river"

He told of the beginning of the Hennepin canal and said that while it had only been opened recently that sixteen cargoes had already passed through it and that this number would be doubled before the ice prevented water shipments. He said the number of tons that had passed from Chicago to Rock Island was not great, but that it was a good showing. The tonnage shows that 1,126 tons were salt and 385 were cement.

In speaking of the effect to the water powers along the route, Mr. Meese said, "The men who have money invested in water powers along the river need have no fear. The government is not going to make public improvements at the sacrifice of private interests All of those people will be taken care of, if the proposed improvements are carried out." In reference to the undertaking, Mr. Meese said: "I have been told that the improvment of Rock river would be one of the easiest engineering jobs in the country in deep waterway problems."

Mr. Meese said that the association suggested that two representatives attend the River and Harbor Congress in Washington. He said that the plan was to take the report of the government engineers, if favorable and have it followed until it got before congress. He said the first thing that would be done with the report would be for Major Keller at Rock Island to submit it to General Bixbee, who would turn it over to the secretary of war and from there it would go before congress.

WARS ON ARMY OF VAGRANTS

Drastic Measures to Be Taken to Rid Minneapolis of Men Who Demand Shelter and Refuse to Work.

Minneapolis.—For the purpose of ridding Minneapolis of vagrants and relieving or abolishing the homelessman problem, which became so acute during the cold weather last winter that churches were thrown open to them, the Associated Charities will adopt drastic measures, it has been announced by Secretary J. J. O'Connor. The program in part is as follows:

"Name changers" who apply under different names to various charity organizations for aid, will be turned over to the police upon discovery.

Suspected vagrants will be photographed for better identification.

State free employment bureaus, city poor department, and municipal lodging house, will co-operate in obtaining the names and other information about men who refuse work.

FIVE CAUGHT IN $1,500,000 DEAL

Alleged Stock and Bond Swindle, International in Scope, Unearthed.

U. S. OFFICERS ARREST MEN

True Bills Returned in Cincinnati Complain That These Parties Connived to Get Money From Corporations Dishonestly.

Washington, Nov. 19.—Federal officials began arrests in an alleged stock and bond swindle which they say is being operated in nearly every large city in the world at a profit to the promoters of more than $1,500,000.

Five of those arrested were indicted by the United States grand jury at Cincinnati last month. The men, it is alleged, operated against individuals and corporations that desired to place stocks and bonds in the open market.

Those indicted by the grand jury on the charge of using the mails to defraud were:

F. D. MINYARD, now in Cleveland.

J. GORDON MALCOM, who went to Canada before the indictments were returned.

THOMAS FISHWICK, now in Boston.

GEORGE HANNAFORD, now in Chicago.

J. R. LONG, now in Buffalo.

Offices Are Raided.

At Rochester, federal officers raided the offices of the American Redemption company and took all persons found there into custody. They will be taken before United States Commissioner E. C. Smith in that city.

The offices of Horace D. Hastings & Co. were raided in Cleveland, and F. D. Minyard, the manager, was arrested in connection with the operations of F. D. Minyard & Co., brokers of Cincinnati.

A. Bruce Crane of the Hunter & Crane brokerage firm was arrested at Newark, N. J., as the local agent of the American Redemption company. Crane was taken before United States Commissioner Stockton and held in $5,000 bond. In the complaint against him the Pittsburg Superior Mines company figures as the dupe in the alleged swindle.

Fishwick was arrested in Boston and Mason G. Worth was taken into custody at New York.

Stenographer Gives Evidence.

Much of the evidence against the indicted men was furnished by Miss Clara Kronage of 1056 Wade street, Cincinnati, a stenographer who formerly worked in the Cincinnati office. Miss Kronage, a pretty girl of marked business ability, was not cognizant of any of the alleged illegal transactions of the brokers until called to testify.

It is alleged that the scheme operated by the accused companies had international scope, and extended into England and the colonies. Postoffice inspectors have been to London and investigated the branch offices there, and they have declared that it works hand in hand with offices in America and Canada.

The men are alleged to have mulcted promoters and infant stock corporations out of thousands of dollars, secured through fees and commissions for arranging the guaranty of the securities of their victims by stock and bond insurance companies controlled by the alleged swindlers.

After paying the commission demanded the alleged victims are said to have found that the interest of the ring in their proposition came to an end.

Arrest Is Made in Chicago.

Chicago, Nov. 19.—George S. Hannaford, 6503 South May street, was arrested here by the federal authorities, charged with being a principal in an extensive fraudulent bond scheme alleged in an indictment returned by the federal grand jury in Cincinnati Hannaford was at once arraigned and held in bonds of $2,000 by United States Commissioner Foote, to appear for trial in Cincinnati.

RICHES ARE GIVEN TO POOR

Wife of Itinerant Piano Tuner Gets a Check for $80,000 From Kentucky Estate.

Webster City, Ia.—A check for $80,000 has been received here by Mrs. C. C. Morton, the pretty little wife of an itinerant piano tuner, as part payment on a big legacy left to her by an aunt who recently died in Kentucky.

The estate, said to amount altogether to $3,000,000, is left entirely to Mrs. Morton, who is only twenty-four years old, while her husband is sixty.

They have been living in a modest boarding house for two weeks while he went about his trade. When Mrs. Morton undertook to deposit her draft in a local bank, the officials were doubtful whether to accept it, until investigation proved that the piece of paper was genuine.

CIRCUSES SNUB TOPEKA, KAN.

No Intimation That Even One-Ring Show Will Be There During Season.

Topeka, Kan.—Is Topeka to be deprived of one its ancient pastimes this year? Indications point that way for not a single circus—not even a one-ring animal show—has yet signified its intention of playing the town.

Present conditions are almost without precedent and those who have followed the circuses for the past score of years—especially the man who always took sonny for sonny's sake—are at a loss to understand the snub the town is getting.

Roy Crawford, manager of several Topeka theaters, who generally knows before anyone else in town just when the circus would be here, said he had not yet any intimation of one of the animal shows coming.

SINGER BUILDING IS TARGET

Charged That New York Skyscraper Projects Fifteen Inches Over Building Line.

New York.—The department of public works of New York city has completed a series of surveys which it declares show that the Liberty street side of the big Singer building projects fifteen inches beyond the building line. In a few days formal legal notice will be served upon the owners that they must pare down the building or the city will do it for them.

The owners declare that no alterations will be made until after active litigation. Their answer to the formal notice will be an injunction suit in which street locations, sidewalks locations, official surveys, ordinances and laws beginning around 1787 and running down to date will be challenged.

Action to be taken against the Singer building will be the most extensive yet undertaken in the campaign of the city to recover its sidewalks. If the city should win and compel the company to move its building back a sheer foot and three inches, the cost of the job would run into the hundreds of thousands of dollars.

The Best Cough Syrup is Easily Made at Home

Costs Little and Acts Quickly. Money Refunded If It Fails.

This recipe makes a pint of cough syrup, and saves you about $2.00 as compared with ordinary cough remedies. It stops obstinate coughs—even whooping cough—in a hurry, and is splendid for sore lungs, asthma, croup, hoarseness and other throat troubles.

Mix one pint of granulated sugar with ½ pint of warm water, and stir for 2 minutes. Put 2½ ounces of Pinex (fifty cents' worth) in a pint bottle, and add the Sugar Syrup. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours. Tastes good.

This takes right hold of a cough and gives almost instant relief. It stimulates the appetite, and is slightly laxative—both excellent features.

Pinex, as perhaps you know, is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, rich in guaiacol and the other natural healing pine elements.

No other preparation will do the work of Pinex in this recipe, although strained honey can be used instead of the sugar syrup, if desired.

Thousands of housewives in the United States and Canada now use this Pinex and Sugar Syrup recipe. This plan has often been imitated, but the old successful formula has never been equaled. Its low cost and quick results have made it immensely popular.

A guaranty of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this recipe. Your druggist has Pinex, or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

To The Editor—How can I cure my husband of the whiskey habit? Is the cure they put in coffee good and will it do away with his breath? Anxious Wife.

Yes, the coffee cure is a good one In fact there is no better way than putting it in his coffee. But when you do it don't look at him as if you were guilty of something. The cure you mention is very good. The last man who took it unconsciously in his coffee never drank a bit of whiskey again—or anything else for that matter. You can thereby get rid of your husband's breath and your husband the same time, if you do it right.

CHAPTER XXVI.

Mutual Explanations.

It was breakfast time, and Britz and Fitch after their exciting night were hungry enough to eat a Hindoo, but they did not stop to show consideration to their inner men.

As he expected, Britz found Griswold and Mrs. Delaroche in the big reception room of the Detective Bureau with the detectives who had arrested them waiting boisterously near the door, and an interested desk lieutenant looked up from his work to hear the denouement of what Police Headquarters had come to regard as the "star" case of the year.

Britz walked slowly to his own room, where the scowling Orientals were penned in a corner, while the chief of the detectives and his two subordinates were taking well-earned rest in the lieutenant's easy-chairs. Britz talked to Manning in whispers, then went to the telephone and called Mrs. Missioner's house.

"Good morning, Mrs. Missioner!" he said over the wire. "This is Lieutenant Britz—Britz, of Headquarters. I called you up to tell you we had arrested the jewel thieves and—beg pardon? What did you say—your jewels have been returned to you? That's strange. I have one of them in my pocket now. How's that? You say you have all your jewels? Then whose is this—the Maharanee? Pardon me, Mrs. Missioner, I don't quite understand. We have the thieves here and the biggest of the diamonds. What did you say—you don't want the thieves prosecuted? Why, really, Mrs. Missioner—yes, of course—yes, I am talking from Police Headquarters'—they are here now, all the thieves, lot No. 1 and lot No. 2. You say you don't understand? Well, I tell you, Mrs. Missioner, perhaps you had better run down here. Yes, I know it is a great deal to ask, but I have worked pretty hard to find your diamonds—yes, day and night. The Chief thinks it would be better if you could arrange to come down. It won't take you long; you need not stay more than five minutes. Oh, but you don't know who the thieves are—yes, you have guessed in part—not altogether; but I think you'd better come down, Mrs. Missioner; you will be interested, I am sure. How's that? Bring Mr. Sands? By all means, if you wish. Yes, I will await you—then you'll come? Thank you very much, Mrs. Missioner. Good-by.

"Now, what do you think of that?" said Britz to Manning. "After all our work, Mrs. Missioner calmly informs me that her jewels have been returned to her, and that she does not wish to prosecute the thieves. She says she is willing to overlook their little deviations from the path of honesty, as she is so glad to recover her jewels. I told her I had the Maharanee in my pocket, and she insisted she had all her gems. What do you know about that, anyway?"

Mrs. Delaroche was brought in by a private of the detective force, and Britz, with elaborate politeness, bowed her to a chair. She was too angry to acknowledge his courtesy, and she sat looking at the lieutenant and the Chief with flashing eyes.

"Mrs. Delaroche," said Britz, "I may as well tell you at the outset that the game is up. We know all about your connection with this case, and the best thing for you to do is to tell us everything you know. Your friend, Mr. Griswold, as you have seen, is under arrest. What do you know about him?"

"I shall answer no questions," said Mrs. Delaroche, "until I shall have had an opportunity to engage counsel."

"Mr. Griswold is engaged to marry you?"

'Of course," she replied with an indignant flush.

"Now, Mrs. Delaroche," Britz replied, "I'm going to tell you that you are the most mistaken lady in Manhattan Island right now. Griswold is not engaged to you; at any rate he doesn't understand that he is."

"What do you mean, sir?"

"I mean, madam," answered Britz, "that Mr. Curtis Griswold, though he engaged himself to marry you, has been industriously engaged for some time past in attempting to become engaged to another woman."

'Who is she?"

"She is the possessor of many millions," said Britz, "a woman of acknowledged beauty and of undeniable charm. Of course, I don't undertake to say for a moment, madam, that her attractivenes equals yours. Doubtless, Mr. Griswold, being an enterprising young man, has eyes more to her millions than to her looks. Nevertheless, she is a beauty."

He watched closely the effect of his words on the high-strung woman facing him, and saw that he had touched a responsive chord. Her eyes flashed as if her very soul vibrated with jealous rage. Her breath came and went in short gasps. Her fingers twisted and untwisted nervously, and she seemed to be on the point of a violent revelation when the situation was interrupted by a knock on the door.

Britz, a flash of amusement in his face, walked to the door, opened it, and thrust his head out. In the corridor stood a man from the Detective Bureau who said:

"The prisoner, Griswold, requests an immediate interview with Lieutenant Britz."

Britz hesitated a minute, then said: "Bring him in here," and then returned to Mrs. Delaroche.

"I shall not ask you to take my word for it, madam," he said. "I'll soon give you proof of the very best kind that what I have told you about Mr. Griswold is true. Just sit over here in this alcove where you cannot be seen from the middle of the room, and pay attention to what goes on."

Shortly after that, Griswold was brought into the room, and the lieutenant, his hands in his pockets, his shoulders squared, his features cast in an iron mold, confronted the clubman.

"How long is this farce going to be kept up?" Griswold demanded.

"None of that now, Griswold. I've got the goods on you. The less of that kind of talk you indulge in, the better for all concerned. Mrs. Delaroche has told everything!"

Griswold inquired sarcastically. "And what, pray, had she to tell?"

"A great deal more than Mrs. Missioner knows," answered Britz craftily.

"Don't you mention that lady's name in such a place as this!" exclaimed Griswold with a show of chivalry that would have gone very well before a jury, but which was lost on such hardened thief-takers as Britz and Manning.

"No harm in mentioning her name, is there, when the lady herself will be here in a few minutes?"

This time there was no simulation in the start Griswold gave. He stared at the detective as if he doubted his own hearing.

"Why—why—you simply must not let her come here," said Griswold again. "I would not have her see me here for anything in the world. Can't this be arranged somehow? Say, you know I am not a poor man—"

Britz grinned at him.

"Oh, I know you can't be bought," said Griswold. "But this is a serious matter to me. It means my whole future. I don't want Mrs. Missioner to come here and see me a prisoner. It will be different when the case comes to trial. I will have counsel then, and I can take care of myself, but just now I'm helpless. Don't bring the woman here to make her lose all respect for me; oh, man, don't queer me!"

Millicent Delaroche from the alcove heard and saw all that passed between the men. She gripped the slender arm of her chair until her tapering fingers curving around it bit into her pink palm. She watched the unmistakable agitation of the prisoner until no doubt remained in her mind of his attitude toward Mrs. Missioner. Then her rage broke through all restraint. Casting the detective's caution to the winds, she strode to the center of the room and towered above Griswold, as, thunderstruck at sight of her—in his self-centered pride of what might happen, he had utterly forgotten for awhile her presence in Police Headquarters—he moved uneasily in his chair.

"Perjurer!" she screamed. "Liar! Ingrate! Thief!"

Each word was like the snap of a lash that brought a wincing start from Griswold as if a black snake white had stung him. He stretched his hands toward her imploringly.

"Millicent!" he cried.

"Never call me by that name again," she almost screamed. "I wish I could forget every occasion on which you have dared to utter it. You wretch!" and she wrung her hands futilely, as if she would like to clasp them about his throat.

Fitch opened the door softly and looked in. Behind him stood Elinor Holcomb and Detective Williams. At a sign from Britz, they entered the room noiselessly and stood beside the door. Before Williams could close it upon them, Mrs. Missioner and Bruyton Sands appeared on the threshold.

Mrs. Delaroche turned to Britz in cold fury, an icy reaction from her volcanic rage of the moment before.

"I will tell you all you wish to know, lieutenant," she said. "I will tell you all I know about Mr. Griswold. He is the man," Mrs. Delaroche continued, "who stole Mrs. Missioner's diamonds!"

The wealthy widow, standing near the door, put her hand to her heart as if about to faint from the shock. Sands, his only thought being to support her in such a trying moment, forgot the presence of all the others, and passed his arm about her shoulders to steady her slightly swaying form. Elinor, with a little sigh, turned to Fitch and clasped both his hands with unmistakable tenderness. Then her head sank upon his shoulder, and the doctor, bolder than Sands, encircled her waist with his arm.

Britz, without making a move to interrupt Mrs. Delaroche, stretched one hand behind him and pressed a button that communicated with the room where Gordon and Hicks waited with the four Hindoos. The connecting door opened and the Orientals could be seen within. Mrs. Delaroche, absorbed in her own presences, intent only upon vengeance in to should shatter Curtis Griswold's very foundation of the man, again fixed her eyes upon him as she continued her denunciation to the detective. Britz and Manning listened alertly. Gordon, in the adjoining room, whipped out a notebook and began taking in shorthand everything the woman said.

"Yes, you stole the jewels," said Mrs. Delaroche to the crouching clubman in his chair. "I didn't know it when you gave them to me, and fool that I was, the suspicions I might have had were kept aloof by my affection for you. You wooed me for a long time. You told me I was the only woman in the world. You swore you never had a single thought of any other. And all that time, it seems, you were courting this Mrs. Missioner. You were seeking to win her—for her wealth, I suppose—it matters not for what. And even while you were in her house as a recognized, even an accepted suitor, you robbed the very woman you really intended to marry!"

Turning with a panther's speed and with its steely strength, she addressed herself again to Britz.

"Mr. Griswold!" she said, "gave me a necklace a few weeks ago—a diamond necklace. It was contained in the jewel case you found in my room. He told me he had purchased it for me, and that it was to be his bridal gift. I wondered at the munificence of the present, but he assured me he was a man of much greater wealth than was generally supposed, and that when we were wed, we would live in luxury equaling that of anyone in New York society. I believed him. He explained that he wished me to take charge of the necklace at once as he feared to keep it in his own apartment, and for business reasons did not wish to intrust it to a safe deposit company. When the news of the Missioner diamond robbery was published in the newspapers, I commented upon it to the man I supposed to be my fiance, and expressed wonder as to whether Mrs. Missioner's diamonds were as beautiful as those he had given me. He asked me to say nothing about my possession of the necklace until our wedding day.

"When you, Mr. Britz, tried to steal the necklace from my room; when, in fact, you did take the case that had contained them, I supposed you to be an ordinary burglar. Naturally I became excited at the thought of losing such magnificent gems. How the jewels were ever taken from my custody I do not yet know. I have no idea where they are. All I do know is that Curtis Griswold stole them, and that, in turn, they were stolen from him.

"As for you," and she turned upon Griswold anew, "I pray Heaven I shall never hear your name again unless it be under circumstances that will give me further opportunity to revenge myself upon you!"

Silence followed the theatrical outburst of the woman. Griswold stood with clasped hands, his eyes on the floor. Mrs. Missioner, her eyes resolutely averted from his crouching form, gazed at Britz expectantly. Elinor, her fine womanhood athrill with sympathy in spite of her weeks of suffering—more keenly because of it, perhaps—sought to soothe the agitation of Mrs. Delaroche, who was close to collapse. Fitch, too, strove to calm the woman. As a man he pitied her; as a physician, he felt some alarm for her because of the great excitement to which she had wrought herself—excitement plainly beyond the endurance of her emotional nature. A feeling akin to indignation stirred him when, glancing toward Britz, he saw a sarcastic smile on the detective's face.

"Bravo!" said the lieutenant detective at last. "Bravissimo, Mrs. Delaroche! If it were not for detaining our good friends, I'd insist upon an encore."

The heroine of the Renaissance burglary flashed furious eyes upon him. Fitch, despite all he knew Britz had done for Elinor, could not conceal his anger. Even Miss Holcomb was indignant. Mrs. Missioner and Sands looked at the detective expectantly. Manning's face was impassive. He was prepared for any surprise from his shrewd lieutenant.

"You behold in Mrs. Delaroche," said Britz, including everybody in a sweep of his hand, "one of the most talented actresses in America. True, she isn't on the stage, but that's only because the managers haven't discovered her. If any of the big managers saw such an example of her art as this, he'd engage her on the spot."

"I don't understand you, Mr. Britz," said Mrs. Missioner inquiringly.

"Mrs. Delaroche understands me, Mrs. Missioner," returned the sleuth. "She knows exactly what I mean. Don't you, Mrs. Delaroche?"

"No!" said the woman from the Renaissance so sharply the word was like a poniard thrust.

MONASTIR TAKEN BY THE SERVIANS

50,000 Turkish Soldiers and Three Generals Lay Down Their Arms.

LOSSES ON BOTH SIDES HEAVY

Sultan Felicitates Turkish Troops on Their Victory Over Bulgarian Forces at Tchatalja—American Marines at U. S. Embassy.

London, Nov. 19.—A private telegram received at Belgrade today reports that Scutari has surrendered Servian headquarters report that the Turks attempted a sortie from Adrianople, but were repulsed with great losses.

Vienna, Nov. 19.—The Austro-Servian situation has been rendered exceedingly tense by the tone adopted the past few days by the Servian press in its denunciations of Austria. Public opinion here demands more and more that the situation be definitely cleared up.

Belgrade, Nov. 19.—The representatives of Italy and Germany called upon Premier Pachitch of Servia and informed him that their government supported Austria's view against Servia's claim for an extension of her territory after the war. M. Pachitch declined to give a definite answer until after the war had been concluded.

London, Nov. 19.—The Ottoman government made a fresh appeal, this time through the Russian ambassador at Constantinople, for the cessation of hostilities, according to a news agency dispatch received here from the Turkish capital.

Belgrade, Nov. 19.—The Turkish fortress at Monastir, after a prolonged and stubborn resistance, has surrendered to the Servians. Official dispatches received state that 50,000 Turks, including three generals, laid down their arms.

The fight for the possession of Monastir has been especially fierce during the past three days. The defenders of the city, realizing that their line of communication with Ochrida, on which they had intended to retreat as a last resort, had been cut, fought desperately until the commander of the fortress saw the futility of further resistance and hoisted the white flag.

Losses on Both Sides Heavy.

The losses on both sides have been very heavy. During the first day's fighting the Servians lost 260 killed and wounded.

The country around the fortress is a swamp, and the allied Servian attackers were frequently wading in mud and water up to their knees. In spite of these difficulties the Servians advanced, their night attacks being remarkably successful. Two of the most important heights, commanding a range of the city—Oblakovo and Kochista—were captured during night engagements.

Sultan Felicitates Troops.

Constantinople, Turkey, Nov. 19.—No firing was audible from the direction of the Tchatalja lines. It is probable that the great battle begun continues, but that the direction of the wind prevents the roar of the cannon being heard here.

The sultan telegraphed his felicitations to the Turkish army at Tchatalja on its success over the Bulgarians. He congratulated Nazim Pasha, the commander-in-chief, whom he requested to give his salutations to the troops. The commander-in-chief responded to the sultan, saying that his message had been a source of great encouragement to the soldiers and that the army had offered prayers for his majesty.

Detachments of bluejackets and marines were landed from the warships of the international squadron. They occupied the foreign embassies, consulates and post offices, the banks, the hospitals and the schools of the respective colonies.

American Marines at Embassy.

The United States station ship Scorpion has sent a detachment of marines to the American embassy. The ambassador says that this is not because he fears an outbreak, but in the way of common action with the other embassies. The Scorpion has moved up the Bosphorus and has taken up a position opposite Arnautkeui to protect the girls' school. The United States is the only nation without cruisers or battleships here. The Scorpion carried eighty marines.

Several American women in the girls' school at Scutari, Asia Minor, remain across the Bosphorus, aiding and encouraging the Turkish and other families. The Scutari school has been closed for several days, and it has been proposed to reopen it because no trouble has occurred at Scutari.

Woman Faces Murder Charge.

Sedalia, Mo., Nov. 19.—Mrs. Pansy Ellen Lesh, who confessed in Los Angeles to poisoning two women, is sane, according to physicians who examined her, and the prosecutor says she will be charged with first degree murder, regardless of her confession.

Recess for Supreme Court.

Washington, Nov. 19.—The Supreme court took a recess until December 2.

MONARCH METAL Weather Strips

Do not think of the Monarch Metal Weather Strips as a luxury to be put on as something extra when you can afford it. You cannot afford to be without them. Read this carefully.

Every window and door in your house—in everybody's house—that is not weather stripped, has cracks between the sash and the frame, which is usually about 1-16 inch to make the sash operate properly under all conditions. It has been proven conclusively that with a wind velocity of 15 miles per hour, this crevice will admit 145 cubic feet of air per hour for every lineal foot of length. (See Engineering Review of March, 1911.) This means nearly 3,000 cubic feet of air per hour on a double hung window of average size.

With greater velocity of wind, this amount is proportionately increased.

This means cold air, dirt, soot. It may mean frozen water pipes. It does mean drudgery of endless cleaning and dusting, which can be remedied with the

MONARCH METAL WEATHER STRIPS

These strips also stop all rattling of windows, and the windows will always be easy to operate, and there will be no sticking.

There are many kinds of weather strips, from the old rubber-edged kind, whose life lasts aboua a year, to the sharp-edged metal type that cuts the hands, sash cords, etc., and requires deep grooves in the sash for its installation.

The PERFECT type is the MONARCH METAL WEATHER STRIP. It consists of two sliding tubes, a tube within a tube. This ingenious interlocking shape makes the strip absolutely weather-tight.

A test made of a double-hung sash, 36x36, fitted 1-16 play all around, with the wind at a velocity of thirty- five miles an hour, allowed a leakage of 109..98 cubic feet of air per minute. Equipped with the Monarch Metal Weather Strip, the leakage was was reduced to 3.36 cubic feet of air per minute, 25 per cent more efficient than any other.

Sides, top and sill strip are made of zinc, and the interlocking strip at the meeting rail is made of copper and bronze.

They are applied to any windows or doors, old or new, by experienced mechanics, and are guaranteed unconditionally, for wear and repair, to outlast the frames to which they are attached.

The following buildings are already equipped with the Monarch Metal Weather Strips::

POLITICAL AND GENERAL

Not So Fast—The eagerness with which some of the Progressive organs beg President-Elect Wilson to declare his unqualified approval of the one-term plank in the Democratic platform is indicative of their heartfelt desire to have him out of the way in 1916. They should not however, move so fast in trying to dispose of the next chief executive He has never said that "under no circumstances" would he accept another term as president.—Boston Post.

FAKES MINES

Dr. W. C. Meyer, widely known as the "diamond king of Brazil," is now charged with having organized a gigantic fraud by which he has taken out of the pockets of investors in the United States, Canada and England between six and eight million dollars. The samples sent to the assayers from the mines were rich, but the investigators sent out from the United States say that the mine was salted and that the whole thing is a gigantic swindle from start to finish. There is something fascinating to most people in the idea of buying mining stock. They accept the stories of the promoters and cheerfully put in their money. Every month they are regaled with glowing accounts of how near they are to a great strike that will in a moment not only recoup them for all their investments, but make them fabulously rich, and thus they are carried on from one payment to another until they are broke and refuse to go farther.

DIVORCE

While there has been a good deal of discussion in regard to our divorce laws, England is profoundly agitated over the same subject. For several years a royal commission has been investigating the subject and the report which it has just made recommends that the two sexes be placed on an equality before the law with regard to the grounds for divorce which shall be adultery desertion for three years' confinement and habitual drunkenness found to be incurable after three years. Then they recommend that all divorce proceedings be heard by a single judge who is employed to close the court during the hearing and prohibit the publication of details. The Archbishop of York opposes these measures. He holds that divorce is destructive of the sanctitity of the marriage ties and family life and contrary to the principals of the Christian faith in its relation to marriage. But nine of the commissioners say that the present stringent restrictions and costliness of divorce are productive of immorality and illicit relations, particularly among the poor.

James and Michael Regan were two brothers, living in De Kalb, Mo. Fifty years ago, Jim gave Mike twenty acres. Then they quarreled over a pig, and they refused to speak to each other. Jim paid taxes on the land. His heirs did the same. Mike died, and his heirs wanted the property. Jim's heirs showed that they had tax receipts for forty-seven years, and the court has now decided that this gives them all the right to the property.

BATHTUB TRUST TO BE DISSOLVED

High Court Holds Patent Laws Do Not Shield Against Sherman Act.

ANNULS ITS LICENSE PACTS

Decision Fully Sustains the Government in Its Fight, Begun Over a Year Ago in Maryland, on Enamel Ware Manufacturers.

Washington, Nov. 19.—The Supreme court of the United States delivered a death blow at violations of the Sherman anti-trust law under the cloak of the protection of the patent laws by annulling as invalid "license agreements" which hold manufacturers of sanitary enameled ironware together in the combination known as the "bathtub trust." Justice McKenna delivered the unanimous opinion of the court. He said that rights conferred by patents were extensive, but did not give a universal license against the positive prohibitions of the Sherman law. The decision fully sustained the government in its fight begun over a year ago against the bathtub and enamel ware manufacturers.

Fight Begun in Maryland.

The fight against the enameled ware manufacturers was begun by the government in the United States district court of Maryland, it being charged that the 50 defendants named had brought about a combination to restrain interstate trade in sanitary enameled ironware and had attempted to monopolize that trade. Sixteen of the defendants were corporations.

One of the individual defendants was Edwin L. Wayman, with whom the corporate defendants and their officials were charged with having made illegal agreements, in effect licenses, or the use of a patented enameling pool. Wayman was to refund part of the license fee if the manufacturers had not violated any conditions of the agreements, among those conditions being one that they would not sell to any jobber who did not sign a contract not to buy from anyone other than the corporate defendants, and another that they would not sell at a lower price or on more attractive terms than those named in a schedule of prices attached to the agreement.

Sustains the Lower Court.

The lower court held that the agreements destroyed competition and fixed prices in violation of the Sherman law. The lower court prohibited the defendants from attempting further to restrain trade by means of these agreements.

Justice McKenna, in announcing the decision of the Supreme court, called attention to the effectiveness of the combination made possible among enamelware manufacturers through Wayman's plan to grant licenses on his improvement for enameling.

Illinois a Step Ahead of Iowa in Getting Hard Roads.

—In regard to good roads, M. O. Eldridge, chief assistant in the information department of the roads division of the department of agriculture at Washington, who is now investigating roads in Iowa, says:

"Good roads will come when the farmer realizes the benefits that will accrue to his land from having them. With good roads the farmer can raise products that will pay better profits than those he now raises. It costs more now to transport grain from a farm nine mile from a railroad than it does to transport the same grain from New Yory to Liverpool."

Wallaces' Farmer continues:

"The time has come when Iowa as a state should begin experiments with hard surfaced roads of some sort. We could well afford to appropriate $100,000, to be used in paying a small part of the cost of a few miles of experimental road in counties in which the county land owners are willing to pay the chief cost. These experimental roads would furnish object lessons of great value."

Illinois is already doing this sort of thing as the Bloomington-Shirley road testifies. Many farmers who have growled at better roads, now have autos and are foremost in the ranks of better road advocates. And what the farmer wants he gets.

A Serious Problem—The problem of getting salt water has already thrown the Balkan allies into something of a pickle.—St. Louis Republic.

WHAT RATS COST IN FRANCE

Statistics Show Damage to Crops From Rodents Reaches $40,000,000 Yearly.

Paris.—Forty million dollars yearly is the estimated figure of the damage done by rats to crops and property in France. The publication of these statstics by the Incorporated Society for the Destruction of Vermin has given an impetus to the campaign for the extermination of the rodent, which is also known to be a transmitter of disease.

The example set by several American cities has been followed with great interest in France and has led Doctor Fontenelle to make a special study of the subject. He finds that the role of the rat and the mouse has been very serious in connection with cases of pneumonia. For a long time it has been noticed that this disease was more deadly in hospitals than other places. The pneumonia microbe becomes extremely virulent in the blood of a mouse, and if a sick person comes in contact with a mouse microbe he will be gravely attacked by the disease.

SEVERE TESTS ARE REQUIRED

Seven Hundred Candidates for Aeronautic Corps Must Undergo Rigid Examinations in Paris.

Paris.—The 700 candidates for France's flying corps are to be subjected to very severe tests at the physical examination ordered by the ministry of war.

Among the requirements are perfect vision, normal color sense, sharp hearing and absolute soundness of the organs of respiration and circulation. It is specified particularly that no men who have to wear spectacles shall do any flying, a rule made the more interesting because some of the world's most notable airmen, past and present, wore or now wear glasses.

The candidates are now learning to fly at the government aerodromes, some of them as pilots of dirigible balloons, but the majority as individual aeroplane pilots. The test is to be more severe for operators of aeroplanes than for balloon aeronauts.

We are informed that the Burlington railway intends to put on the day freight again after having dispensed with it for the past ten years We hope they go ahead with this as we need such a freight very much, for the present night freight cannot handle all the work and as a result the service here is inadequate. Then besides it will often accommodate passengers who are desiring to go west in the morning for though but a freight or mixed train it will be better than nothing at all. If it is run on the same schedule as the one taken off several years ago it will leave West Brooklyn about 8:30 in the morning and return about 5:00 in the afternoon. Mrs. U. G. Dysart of Viola called on relatives and friends here Friday afternoon.

It has reached that period of the year when each of those nice days are fully appreciated. Some of them however, bring complaint as the corn huskers become too warm in the fields in mid day. The corn is being cribbed in good time and is of good quality as a general rule. We are told that Frank Barr husked one hundred eighty one bushels during one of the fair days and if this is true he must be given the record for this vicinity. We believe Frank is the boy who can do it if anyone can for he is a hustler.

Mrs. John Acker was a visitor in West Brooklyn Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. Cora Biggart was the guest of her daughter and family in Compton Thursday.

We notice from some of our exchanges that Amboy is soon to have a second bank. This time the new institution is to be organized as a state bank and will open with a capital of $25,000.00. Formerly that city possessed two banks but with the death of Henry Klein the one known as The Amboy Bank was discontinued, and since that time the First National Bank has had the business all alone. The new institution will find a worthy competitor with the old reliable First National already established and carrying with the prestige obtained by years of business in the banking line.

KING HAS FIFTY YEARS' REIGN

George of Greece, Welcomed Half Century Ago to Throne, Has Guided Nation Well

Athens.—King George of Greece, who again looms large in the public eye by reason of the flame of war which appears to be spreading rapidly over southeastern Europe, recently entered upon the fiftieth year of his reign. Next to the venerable emperor of Austria, he is the oldest of the sovereigns of Europe. Born a prince of Denmark, he was proclaimed king of the Hellenes by the national assembly of Greece on March 30, 1863. He was then seventeen years old. On October 30 of the same year he arrived in Athens, and on the following day he took the oath and mounted the throne.

When the future king arrived in Athens, forty-nine years ago, he was welcomed by a little nation of a million people. He has more than two million subjects now, and Greece has progressed very creditably under his rulership. Though Greece has been overtaken by severe political storms during the last half century, the throne of King George has never once been seriously threatened.

No one doubts that the king has a genuine love for his adopted country and, at the present moment, shares to the utmost degree the dream of every Greek of making Aegean sea a Grecian lake, as it was in the palmy days of ancient Athens, and of seeing her flag float from the minarets of Constantinople on that day, which may not be far distant, when the Ottoman shall be expelled from Europe.

THINK THEY HAVE SLAYER

Rochester Police Make Arrest In the Joseph Josephs Case.

Rochester, N. Y., Nov. 19.—In George H. Stearns, who claims Boston as his home, the Rochester police believe they have the murderer of Joseph Josephs, a Syrian boy of Lackawanna. Stearns was arrested on a charge of maltreating a boy. The description answers in every particular, the police say, that of the Lackawanna murderer. Stearns insists that he has never been in Buffalo or Lackawanna. Specimens of his handwriting have been obtained and sent to Buffalo for comparison with postal cards received by the Buffalo police, and Chief of Police Gilson of Lackawanna will come to Rochester to attempt to identify the man.

STOMACH SOUR? GOT INDIGESTON ALSO?

"PAPE'S DIAPEPSIN" WILL MAKE YOUR DISORDERED STOMACH FEEL FINE IN FIVE MINUTES—TIME IT!

If what you just ate is souring on your stomach or lies like a lump of lead, refusing to digest, or you belch gas and eructate sour, undigested food, or have a feeling of dizziness, heartburn, fullness, nausea, bad taste in mouth and stomach headache —this is indigestion.

A full case of Pape's Diapepsin costs only fifty cents and will thoroughly cure your out-of-order stomach, and leave sufficient about the house in case some one else in the family may suffer from stomach trouble or indigestion.

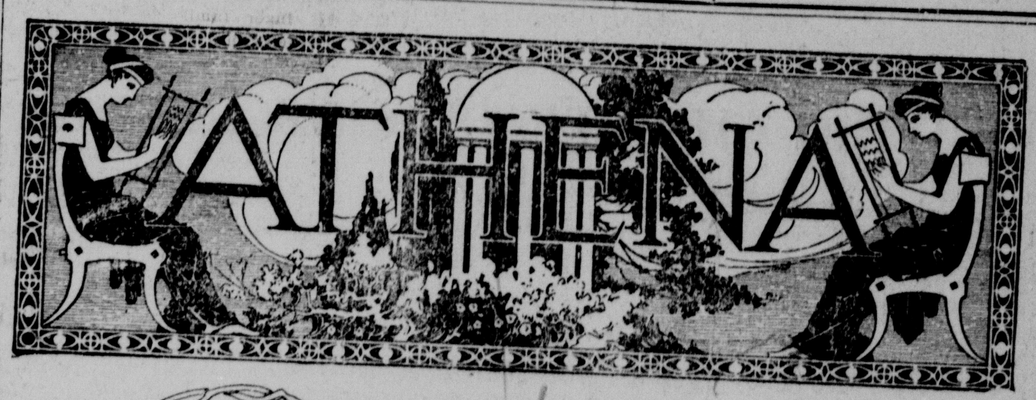

Ask your pharmacist to show you the formula plainly printed on these fifty-cent cases, then you will understand why dyspeptic troubles of all kinds must go, and why they usually relieve sour, out-of-order stomachs or indigestion in five minutes. Diapepsin is harmless and tastes like candy, though each dose contains power sufficient to digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all the food you eat; besides, it makes you go to the table with a healthy appetite; but, what will please you most, is that you will feel that your stomach and intestines are clean and fresh, and you will not need to resort to laxatives or liver pills for biliousness or constipation.

This city will have many Diapepsin cranks, as some people will call them, but you will be cranky about this splendid stomach preparation, too, if you ever try a little for indigestion or any other stomach misery.

Get some now, this minute, and forever rid yourself of stomach trouble and indigestion.

WILD LAND FARMS

What Bohemians Accomplished by Co-Operative Work.

Families From New Jersey and Ohio Make Homes in Tennessee Wilderness—Are Not Only Making a Living but Show Profit.

Nashville, Tenn.—In the spring of 1911 the Tennessee Central railroad located a colony of Bohemians on the Cumberland plateau at Mayland, under the name of the Bohemian Co-Operative Farming company. They purchased 5,300 acres in the woods without clearing, houses or fences. Immediately from New Jersey and Ohio Bohemian families came to the plateau and the work of transforming the wilderness into productive fields, gardens and orchards began. The story of this wonderful development is told by Rutledge Smith, industrial agent of the Tennessee Central railroad, as follows:

"The land was subdivided into fifty acre tracts, one tract to the family, so that the entire purchase would care for 100 families. Mr. Leonard Schwartz of New Jersey, an educated, cultured and trained farmer of large experience, was made manager of the colony, and the work of development has been under his immediate supervision. As the colony is co-operative in every respect, all the work is done by the Bohemians, no outside help being employed.

"The first work that was done after the property was subdivided was to build a few comfortable cottages to care for the pioneers. This done, they elaborated a careful program of procedure which would automatically expand with the increasing population.

"I went up last week to see the fruits of their labors. I found nearly 100 light haired and bronzed faced sons and daughters of Bohemia, intelligent, happy and content. Satisfaction reigned supreme with them, and they expressed themselves as having reached a clime as near perfection to their ideals of life as it was possible to find. It made me feel good to receive the sincere gratitude of these sturdy people for bringing them to the plateau of Tennessee.

"Mr. Schwartz showed me over the lands. Where formerly the timbered jungle stood were modern, imposing barns overflowing with feed. The fields of timothy had cut nearly two tons per acre, and these had been turned and planted in turnips and cabbage for cow feed, and it looked as though they would produce enough to feed the mountain.

"Then there were patches of buckwheat, rye and the vegetable gardens, all luxuriant and profitable. Vegetables have been canned for winter use and to sell.

"Not only have these thrifty sons of Bohemia supported themselves while making their homes, but are now reaping a distinct profit. They all have money, pay for what they buy, are good citizens and a blessing to Tennessee.

"Every day is workday for them. It is never too hot or cold; they keep everlastingly at it. They work with intelligence, with a definite idea in view and accomplish what they start out to do. They do not practice the habit of our farmers in going to bed at dark and rising before day. After supper they read and lay out the work for the morrow, discuss together the best means for advancement, spend an occasional evening in social enjoyment, and at a reasonable hour in the morning are in the fields and there they remain until dark. Success can only crown the efforts of such intelligent labor.

"In the field the Bohemian rides, no walking between the plow handles for him. There is no dragging the plows around at the head of the land, but the horses keep on moving. Everything that a horse or machine can do the Bohemian makes them do.

"They are now turning their attention to horticulture and orchards are being laid out on a scientific scale and thoroughly prepared. Also dairying is coming in for its proper share.

"Just as rapidly as they can build cottages, without taking the proper time from the fields, families from New Jersey are ready to fill them, and it will not be long until their full hundred families are enjoying the peace and plenty of those who by intelligent effort are transforming the plateau into the south's garden spot."

GIRL COEDS DIG POTATOES

Why Wisconsin Normal Students Attended Football Game at Superior.

River Falls, Wis.—Digging potatoes, washing windows, splitting wood and doing family washing are some of the modes of occupation employed by thirty girl students of the River Falls Normal school. They clubbed together and voted to accept any kind of work so their earnings might be pooled and the lump sum used to defray their expenses to attend the football game between the local Normal and the Superior Normal schools, that was held recently.

The girls earned money enough to charter a special car, in which they made the trip. Some of the girls washed dishes in restaurants, and during the period of "manual labor" the yards of several prominent homes were put in order.

GIBSON JURY PICKED

LAWYER'S TRIAL FOR SZABO MURDER IS BEGUN.

His Wife Selects Every Juror and Overrules Counsel When He Challenges Veniremen.

Goshen, N. Y., Nov. 19.—The 12 men who will decide the fate of Lawyer Burton W. Gibson, who is on trial for his life charged with the murder of Mrs. Rosa Menschik Szabo, were chosen at the first session of the trial.

Mrs. Maude Gibson, the accused lawyer's wife, picked the men. As each venireman took the witness stand to be examined she eyed him closely. In a few seconds she decided whether she wanted him in the jury box. When the talesman met with her approval she beckoned to her husband, who sat at the other end of the counsel table, and nodded her head violently. When she did not like the appearance of a man, who to everyone else in the courtroom looked as though he might make a good juryman, she turned her head away.

After her husband's chief attorney, Robert H. Elder, on two separate occasions had peremptorily challenged talesmen of whom the wife had expressed her approval, she overruled Elder and persuaded counsel for the defense to withdraw the challenges and question the prospective jurors further.

Gibson and his wife expressed satisfaction over the jury.

NURSE GOES TO PRISON

Helen L. Watson Pleads Guilty to Theft of $1,500 Worth of Jewels and Dresses.

White Plains, N. Y., Nov. 19.—Miss Helen Louise Watson, the young and pretty trained nurse, was sentenced to the Bedford reformatory by County Judge Platt. Miss Watson pleaded guilty to an indictment charging the theft of $1,500 worth of jewels and dresses from the home of the late Mrs. Mary Gregory Porter Devereux. Friends, who have interested themselves in the case, claim that Miss Watson is a kleptomaniac and steals only after having come from long periods of nursing.

New York, Nov. 19.—Twelve citizens of New York—the same who have been sitting in judgment on the gunmen charged with the murder of Herman Rosenthal—today took into their hands the most serious problem that has confronted the community for a generation.

Justice Goff charged the jury this morning and the case went to the jury at noon.

An Apology

"We offer to the many good ladies of Dixon who came to our store last Saturday in response to the drawing for the kitchen cabinet" that we did not have more chairs for their comfort, however they could not have been used since there was not standing room left. And a further apology for the small amount of furniture on hand, but in order to make plans for an opening day we had to decide on two weeks ahead and having the promise of goods expected to be fully stocked by this time, but owing to the crowded condition of the factories it was impossible to get all lines. We are however receiving goods daily and our stock will soon be complete. We will appreciate your call for inspection or purchase at any time.

Very Respectfully Yours

HOPPE DEFEATS SUTTON

Youthful Billiardist Needs One More Victory to Rivet Championship.

New York, Nov. 19.—Playing good, bad and indifferent billiards, Willie Hoppe, with ridiculous ease, won his match from George Sutton in the 18.2 balkline championship tournament at the Hotel Astor. Hoppe defeated his Chicago rival by 500 to 140, Sutton's total representing the lowest score of the tourney. Hoppe's average of 29 7-17 was the highest of the meeting. The youthful champion needs one more victory to rivet the championship. Slosson disposed of Yamada by 500 to 331 in 41 innings of rather poor play.
